Dear Mr Morgan.

In case I would miss seeing you, when calling at your house with this M.S.S., I write to say that I have considerably extended my notes of reminiscences for your McGee book.

As Virgil wrote "Sicilium est onagri laboris". It was hard work. I am not, now,
"as I used to was", and it is with great difficulty I can make any literary effort, even my own.

To

H. J. Morgan, Esq.,

Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Sir :-

At the request of my esteemed friend, Mr. John Ross Robertson, of this City, I send you the following information:

I was born in Toronto on the 23rd November, 1854, and have remained in this City all my life. My father's name was William Fleming, my mother's Jane Cauldwell. Attended the Public Schools until about fourteen years of age; and afterwards attended evening school for a couple of years, receiving a business education.

I was married on the 23rd December, 1879, to Margaret Jane Breadon, of Montreal, who died on the 29th March, 1883, leaving two children. Married again 23rd October, 1888, to Lydia Jane Orford, daughter of the late William Orford.

Entered the City Council as Alderman in January 1886. (This Ward comprised the area which I have resided all my life) but was elected for an overwhelming majority for four years as Alderman, retiring in 1890. Remained out of the Council for two years, and in January, 1892, being elected over Mr. E. B. Osler, by 361 votes.

Yours truly,

Mayor.
