My dear Grandmother

I find that a month has passed since I left you with a promise to write so soon as I got settled in my new quarters here.

I cannot say that I see people or did not find things lots of here as I expected, simply because I knew so little of what to expect that I had scarcely formed an opinion on the subject. So far I see no cause for regret, there is enough to do as the work had got behind
